N. Y. POSTMASTER SHOT DOWN BY AN ASSASSIN TODAY

EDWARD M. MORGAN VICTIM OF MURDERER'S BULLET

ERIC H. MACKAY, THE SLAYER

WOUNDS OFFICIAL IN PRESENCE OF LITTLE DAUGHTER

MR. MORGAN MAY RECOVER

Surgeons Give Out Hope—Mackay
Probably Disciplined as a Postal Clerk

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Postmaster Edward M. Morgan was shot and fatally wounded today by a man accosting him near his home at 146th street and Broadway. He later was identified as Eric H. Mackay, a stenographer, who blew out his own brains. Morgan, accompanied by his daughter, aged 12, was near the Subway entrance, when Mackay approached and said, "Is this Mr. Morgan?" The postmaster replied in the affirmative. Mackay pressed a pistol against Morgan's stomach and fired. As the postmaster fell, the assassin placed the gun against his own forehead and fired. A great crowd gathered.

Morgan was wounded fatally and was carried home.

Mackay was removed to the 162d street station. He was identified by a premium due from the New York Life Insurance company addressed in care of Mrs. Cogswell, 239 West 116th street.

Premeditation was indicated by the business card of Hill, Hunt and Betts, attorneys, on which was written in pencil, "In the event of an accident, please notify the above firm."

Letter Shows Identity
An empty envelope addressed to "Annie Mackay, Training School, Anna Jaques Hospital, Newburyport, Mass.," and a dagger and slung shot were found in the assassin's pocket. Inquiry at the office of Hunt, Hill and Betts developed that Mackay was their stenographer. Further information was refused. Postmaster Morgan had charge of an investigation of dishonesty in connection with the postal clerks in New York, and the police theory is that Mackay probably suffered through Morgan's vigilance.

An operation performed on Morgan at 10 o'clock, revealed the fact that the intestines were not perforated, and it is thought he has a good chance of recovery.

Conspiracy Possible
Mystery as to the motive of the attempted assassination was added when the police learned that at 6 o'clock this morning a man phoned to the postoffice from a bakery in Amsterdam avenue, near Morgan's home, requesting to see the postmaster. He was informed he could see him at 8:30. The man in no way tallied with the description of Mackay, and the police are inclined to the theory that the tragedy was the result of a plot. Morgan told his daughter, Dorothy, as he lay on the sidewalk, that he had never seen his assailant.

GIRLS SHOCK WICHITA

WICHITA, Kas., Nov. 9.—The home of some of the leading people of Wichita were entered last night without invitation and the families were more or less shocked by beautiful girls, scantily, yet daintily clad, who entered the parlors and in the presence of the household gave a splendid exhibition of plain and fancy dancing, calculated to make the average vaudeville artist green with envy. The dancers departed as suddenly as they came. The girls were of the swell society families of the town. One family gasped for breath when a beautiful young lady, clad only in a bathing costume, such as is calculated to make the folks on the bathing beaches sit up and take notice, entered the home, and mounting a chair, gave a diving stunt, using a folded rug as the pool.

The girls and their actions are town talk today.

It finally leaked out through one of the society women of the town that it was all a part of the initiation ceremony of the Lambda Alpha Lambda sorority.

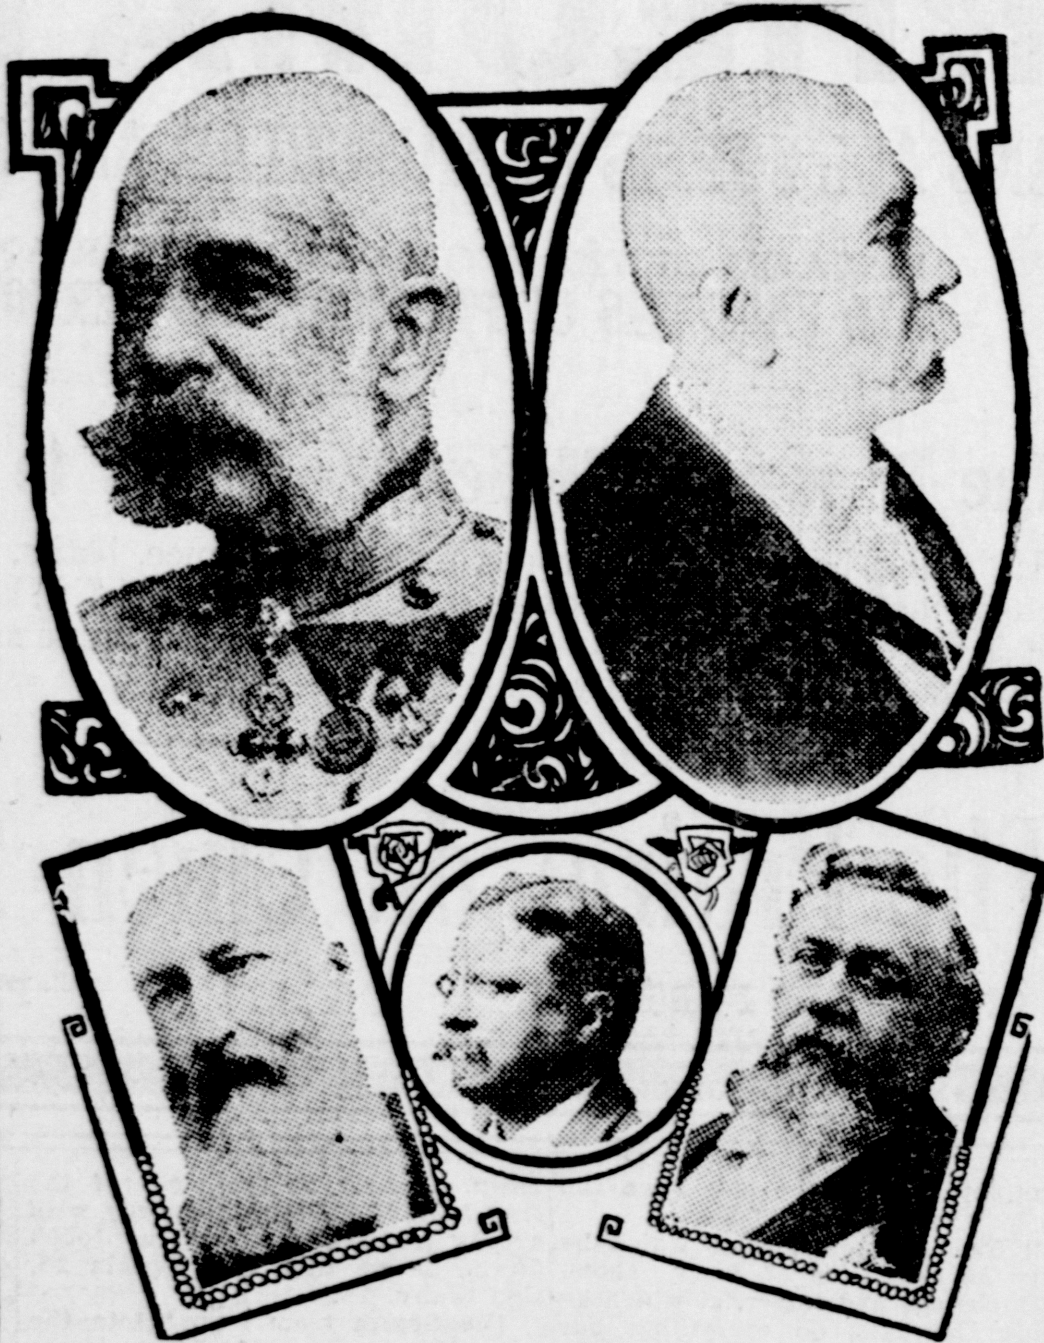

SHIPPY DANGEROUSLY ILL

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Chief Shippy had two serious attacks of heart failure in his office this afternoon. His condition is critical and he was taken home. He has been suffering with heart weakness for some time. He was at the office today for the first time in some days.

FINED FOR TALKING

Kitty Kelley was fined $5.00 and costs in police court this morning for loud talking.

CHILD BURNED TO A CRISP

Four Others Seriously Injured at Home of Fred Niebuhr This Morning

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 9.—(Special.)—A little child, burned beyond recognition, serious burns and injuries to three other members of the family, a hired man badly injured and the farm home reduced to ashes, tell the story of the explosion of an acetylene gas plant at the home of Fred Niebuhr in the town of Burke near here Sunday night. That all but the babe escaped at all is a miracle, in view of the awful destruction so suddenly brought.

COMMISSION WINS VICTORY.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 9.—(Special.)—"The pleading guilty of Meyer and Nowack in the circuit court of Jefferson county to the charge of having sold oleomargarine in imitation of yellow butter, after having carried their case to the supreme court, is a victory for the dairy and food commission of this state and an indication of the practical surrender of the manufacturers after a long and persistent contest," said State Dairy and Food Commissioner J. Q. Emery today. "This department will continue to enforce this statute along the line of the original intent as interpreted by the supreme court, the effect of which is that if a person wishes to purchase oleomargarine, he may be able to get it at the price of butter, and if he wishes to pay for butter he may be sure to get butter and not oleomargarine."

TEDDY WHACKS GOMPERS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 9.—President Roosevelt today invited the following to dine with him Nov. 17, and to discuss desired labor legislation: T. V. Powderly, John Mitchell, Daniel Keefe, Jas. Duncan and F. H. Morrissey. Gompers was not included.

OUT OF JAIL FOR ABOUT A MINUTE

HARRY BROWN REARRESTED AT GATES OF WAUPUN

HE CRIED LIKE A CHILD

Thief Who Stole Bicycle a Year Ago
Must Now Answer to Another Charge

With a new suit of clothes, five dollars in his pocket and all the chance that an ex-convict has of a "future" together with his prison discharge in his pocket, Harry Brown was rearrested as he walked from the gates at Waupun yesterday and will be prosecuted by the La Crosse police for stealing a grip on November 9 of last year.

He was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary for stealing a bicycle and at that time it was alleged that he stole several grips from the Milwaukee depot. He asserted his innocence and refused to confess and tell where the grips were hidden. They were found later. When arrested yesterday and the warrant was read to him Brown broke down and cried like a child and seemed completely broken up by the sudden breaking of his plans for the future.

When arraigned before Judge Brindley this afternoon he pleaded not guilty to the charge of stealing the grips and stoutly maintained that he knew nothing of the matter. He will be tried by jury at some later date.

PLOT TO BRIBE COURT.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 9.—J. B. Bridges, president of the Washington State Bar association, has appointed a committee to investigate the conduct in office of Judge Milo Root, associate judge of the state supreme court. The action of the bar association was taken upon the request of the supreme court, and follows the publication of a story connecting Judge Root with the $70,000 shortage of Judge M. J. Gordon.

KEIZER'S REPORT ASSESSMENT BASIS

COUNTY ASSESSMENT COMMIT-TEE REACHES AGREEMENT

CALLED FAIR TO THE CITY

Supervisor Kindley Says Sale Value Is 25 Per Cent Above the Assessed Valuation

County assessment committee of which Supervisor John Kindley is chairman, has reached an agreement and will recommend to the county board at its meeting tomorrow that the report of Supervisor of Assessment Keizer be made the basis of assessment this year. This will make the city's proportion 62.59 per cent, as compared to 62.54 last year.

Chairman Kindley calls attention to the fact that this is eminently fair to the city, as property is assessed at 25 per cent less than its sale value as shown by the state tax commission report, and is assessed practically according to the city assessor's returns. The work of Mr. Keizer in the county has been to equalize assessments, and this year moneys have been listed in the farming communities as well as in the city, where a million and a half dollars were taxed last year. In past years only about fifty thousand in moneys were taxed in the country. Mr. Kindley explains that the rate for the city is slightly higher owing to the fact there is much more money and securities and vast commercial and industrial improvements during the past year.

The assessment districts of the county board are fifteen in number: 11 townships, 2 villages and 2 cities. Mr. Kindley believes the county board will adopt this method of setting the basis of taxation this year, after the bitter fight of last year.

THE ROOT MILITARY COLLEGE IS OPENED

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 9.—The new Army and War College was dedicated this afternoon. Root being the principal speaker. Gen. Franklin Bell and Brig. Gen. Wm. W. Witherston, of the general staff, also spoke.

The college is a monument to Root, who evolved the idea of a course of study for all army officers to keep them continually in readiness for service anywhere in the world. The college has been open several months and has many students. It is situated in the Washington Arsenal grounds, fronting the Potomac river.

MAY FIGHT GOMPERS.

DENVER, Nov. 9.—Despite statements of delegates to the convention of the Federation of Labor that the meeting would reasonably be harmonious, there was promise of lively parliamentary fighting when the convention assembled today. Preliminary to the meeting in the groups of delegates nothing was discussed but the attitude of the convention as to the action of Gompers and the executive council in coming out for Bryan.

Gompers today issued a statement in answer to the statement credited to Taft while on the bench, which laid the foundation of properous and effective labor unions, as existing today. Gompers said: "I do not wish to enter an extended discussion of the campaign, but can say Taft's statement is false on the face of it. Though we have lost the fight this year for justice to the working people, it does not signify that we shall give up the fight."

Insult to Mitchell.
A sensation was caused before the convention met today, when it was learned that not until today had Secretary Morrison received from President Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, the credentials from the United Mine workers permitting Mitchell to sit in the convention. He intended to withhold the credentials, but too much pressure was brought to bear upon him.

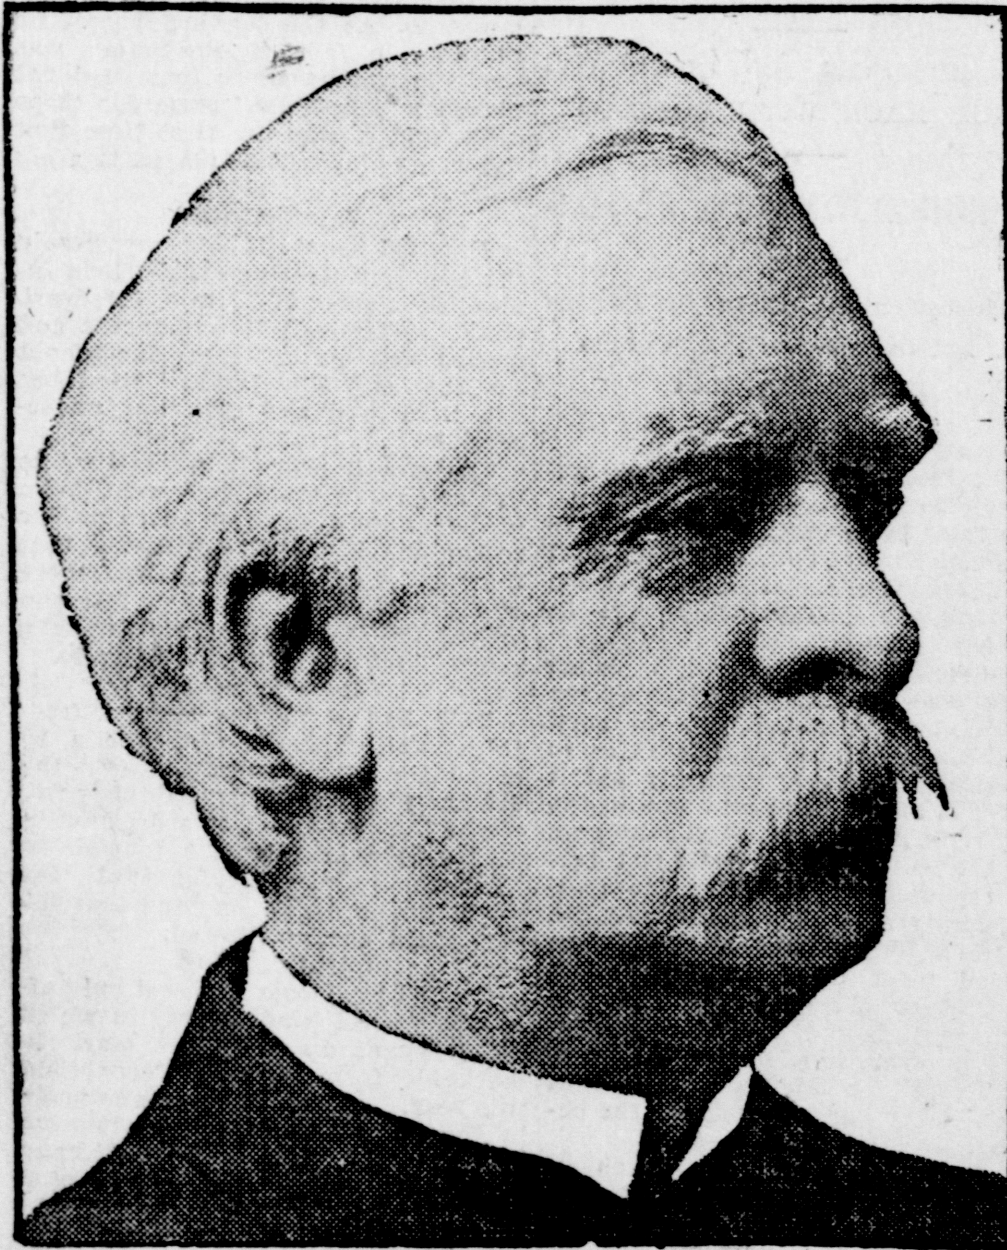

ZENO HOST ATTACKS ALL FRATERNAL INS.

MADISON, Nov. 9.—(Special.)—There will be failures of many fraternal insurance societies within the next two or three years, unless the legislature of various states enact laws compelling them to collect adequate rates, according to Zeno M. Host, formerly insurance commissioner of Wisconsin. He has been in the city during the past few days on business. He says there ought to be a law penalizing the officers and managers "of the fraternal society who continue willfully to collect inadequate rates from the membership."

THE MAN RESPONSIBLE FOR TARIFF REFORM

SERENO B. PAYNE.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 9.—The reelection of Sereno B. Payne, who will be reappointed chairman of the ways and means committee in the house of representatives, means that Mr. Payne will have charge of the tariff reform work so much heralded by the republican party during the past election.

So confident was Mr. Payne of reelection that during the congressional recess he has been constantly devoting his time to gathering all information possible to lay before the ways and means committee when congress reassembles.

A large force of clerks and tariff experts have been employed and the work has been done with exceptional thoroughness. Mr. Payne has been in congress almost continuously for the past 24 years and as chairman of the ways and means committee has made a thorough study of the tariff situation.

WORLD FOR SENATOR TEDDY ROOSEVELT

LACKED POISE AND DIGNITY OF A PRESIDENT

BUT TOGA WOULD FIT HIM

Prefers Democrat, but in Absence of One Thinks President Should Succeed Platt

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The World today endorses Roosevelt for the senate, after declaring it would prefer the election of a democrat of integrity and ability. It says:

"In suggesting Roosevelt for the senatorship, the World withdraws no word of criticism made on the administration, policy, methods and manner of discharge of duties. We do not regard him as fit for president. He lacks balance, poise, dignity and a sense of proportion. He lacks a sense of responsibility, he lacks judgment and nearly all the elements, except energy and determination, that go to make an administrator of the first rank."

It declares Roosevelt gained by experience, is invaluable to the nation and should not be lost. It refers to his familiarity with foreign affairs and points to the value of his services in the senate.

PASTOR HUGGED AND KISSED HER

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—The community was astounded at the confession of Father Payson Young, rector of the Episcopal church of St. Mary, Virgin, an extremely high church bordering on the Catholic, that he hugged, held in his lap and kissed Edna Clark, aged 19, a missing art student, in the rectory study. The girl left her home in Alameda Oct. 27 and there has been no trace of her whereabouts since. Edna Reynolds, a chum, told the police that the Clark girl claimed to be engaged to marry Young and visited his study almost daily after art school for three months. The rector, when confronted by the statement, nearly collapsed and asserts the occlusion was purely priestly. Members of the congregation demand that Bishop Nichols investigate. The girl drew $200 from the bank and is reported as having bought a ticket for Boston, where she might be at Dr. Elwood Worcester's institute. Worcester and Young are friends.

CANNON MAKES AN UNHAPPY SPEECH

ATTITUDE ON WATERWAYS IN-SPIRES MORE OPPOSITION

FIGHT TO BE A FIERCE ONE

"Czar" of House in Chicago Address
Arouses Antagonism of Many Roosevelt Men

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—That Speaker Cannon implied that he would oppose the appropriations for public works, including the Panama Canal and the deep waterway movement, is the interpretation here of his speech delivered before the Bankers' Club Saturday. Among the waterway enthusiasts this attitude aroused indignation and a more determined fight to get the necessary appropriation through congress for pushing the project will be made. Cannon said:

"No one has yet proved that 14 feet of water can be maintained below St. Louis. Wouldn't it be better to leave the matter to a future generation, who will walk in the light of greater experience, than to go ahead and make a mistake now?"

Admirers of the Roosevelt administration have undertaken a sharp criticism of other things in Cannon's speech. The probable outcome of the speech will be great opposition to Cannon's reelection as speaker.

GUNNESS HORROR IS REVIVED IN RAY LAMPHERE'S TRIAL

MURDER OF BELLE GUNNESS

DEATH OF WOMAN "BENDER"
AND THREE CHILDREN CAUSE

ALL WEEK TO GET A JURY

It Is Thought That Time Will Be Required—Father Pauper to Save His Son

LA PORTE, Ind., Nov. 9.—The unraveling of the mystery of the Gunness farm, La Porte's "House of Mystery," began today in the trial of Ray Lamphere, charged with the murder of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her three children.

It is evident that the selection of a jury will prove difficult. The defense announced that jurors who are not convinced that Mrs. Gunness is dead will not be accepted. Prosecuting Attorney Smith and Attorney M. R. Sutherland will conduct the prosecution, and E. Worden will defend Lamphere.

Lamphere was cheered up today when he was told that his father had entered into the defense with great spirit. Lamphere's father, once a justice of the peace, will stake his every cent on the trial and be penniless when the case ends.

Both the state and the defense has subpoenaed a large number of witnesses. It is expected the trial will last several weeks and that it will require this entire week to select a jury.

Quash Indictment, Maybe.

The court room was pecked when the case was called. The defense filed a demand that the indictment be quashed, and decision was temporarily withheld, while the examination of veniremen was begun. It is expected that the first panel of 25 will be exhausted and early preparations have been made to summon 25 more.

Eight Veniremen Excused.
Eight veniremen were examined and excused by noon.

The "Yellow Sally," famous through its good showing in its race with the flyer Red Wing has been purchased by Carl H. Winslow of this city. Mr. Winslow closed the deal at Winona Saturday. He will bring the boat to La Crosse this week for a trial trip and then the racer will be put away for the winter at Winona. The Yellow Sally was built by Charles Gardner of Winona for the purpose of capturing the racing title on the Upper Mississippi. Soon after the Red Wing Boat company built a 6 cylinder boat called the Flyer Red Wing which beat the Sally in a fast and exciting race. Mr. Gardner finding his hopes shattered accepted an offer of Mr. Winslow who will not go in for racing, but will use the craft for pleasure only. The boat is built on speed lines and is propelled by a 4 cylinder 40 horse power Thomas automobile engine and is capable of making 20 miles an hour against the current. Aside from the Flyer Red Wing the Sally is by far the speediest launch on the upper Mississippi.

WISCONSIN WINS FROM MINNESOTA

BADGERS NOW IN CHAMPION-SHIP RACE WITH CHICAGO

ILLINOIS DOWNS IOWA 22 TO 0

Northwestern Is Beaten by Purdue
in a Close Game With Honors
Even in First Half

The Badgers have eliminated another deadly rival and the championship rests between Chicago and Wisconsin. These two teams will fight it out on Nov. 21 at Madison when the western championship will be decided. Wisconsin won Saturday's game by superior playing and by using the new style method of play to good advantage. Minnesota was able to use the old style successfully but it proved a failure when it came to the new style of playing. Moll's kicking was the feature of the game and during the second half after the Badgers had scored it was resorted to entirely. The reason for this is explained when one considers that Coach Stagg of the Chicago team was in the grandstand getting a line on the Wisconsin style of play and getting "wise" on any new plays that Coach Barry had planned for the occasion. But Stagg didn't learn much in regard to the Badger style of play unless kicking could be called a new style of play. Moll used the kicking game entirely in the last half, punting on the first down on numerous occasions and the spectators at the game say that Wisconsin could have run up a larger score had they tried very hard. As it was Wisconsin won and the rooters are supremely happy. They are now looking forward to the game a week from next Saturday with great interest and they say that the Badgers will surprise the Maroons when the time comes. Illinois struck its gait Saturday and buried the plucky Iowa team under an avalanche of 22 points. The score does hardly do justice to the Hawkeye team, for it was in the last half that all except 6 points were made and then only after a hard struggle. "Pom" Sinnock was the star of the game and it was his deadly passing and his superior dodging that proved the downfall of the Iowa team. Sinnock was by far the stellar player in the game, although Pettigrew and Captain Van Hook were to a great extent responsible for the sweeping victory. Northwestern lost a hard fought game to Purdue after playing a 0 to 0 score in the first half. Purdue on old style football after Northwestern had made a disastrous attempt to use the forward pass. The remarkable fact of the game was that the Northwestern team had not played a "big eight" team for three years and it was the first time that any of its players had played in a big game.

In the East.
Harvard sprung a big surprise in the east by defeating the Carlisle Indians by a score of 17 to 0. Harvard clearly outclassed its opponents and proved the better team throughout the contest. The Indians tried but one field goal and that was unsuccessful.

Dartmouth proved a tarter to Princeton and the Tigers went down to defeat by a score of 10 to 6. The reason for Princeton's loss was that the new style of play proved more effective than the old. Sherwin proved the star of the game, scoring a drop kick early in the struggle.

Yale Victorious.
Yale had a narrow escape from defeat and squeezed out with a 10 to 10 tie with Brown, after the Brown team claimed that they received the worst end of a decision in regard to a goal from a touchdown when the referee decided that the catch was an unfair one and that the goal could not be allowed.

Cornell Wins.
Cornell won from Amherst only after the fastest kind of play in which the Ithacans displayed the most remarkable form seen on Percy field this year. Cornell's score was made by the fiercest kind of line plunging and the followers of the Chicago team, that will meet Cornell next Saturday, say that the new style of play as used by the Maroons will prove the Ithacans' downfall.

The Remarkable Will Of a Doctor

He Leaves the Secret of Life to His Children And the World.

One of the world's greatest physicians upon his death bed called his children about him and said: "When I die I will leave the secret of life as I have discovered it in my practice."

When they read his will it directed them to a safety vault which contained a large envelope marked thus: "The Secret of Life." Upon opening it they read: "Don't abuse the stomach." This profound thinker after a long life of medicine knew the stomach to be throne of man.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will help you make a stomach healthy.

If it is worn out and lacks the fluids of digestion these tablets will take the place of such fluids.

If it is filled with poisonous juices, these tablets will neutralize and remove such poison.

If you cannot eat without agony these tablets will show you how you can. If you will eat foolishly, or drink excessively, or if business demands abuse of stomach, these tablets after meals will make such abuse light, for they take the hardship away from the stomach.

They are great digesters, filled with more powerful agents than the system can give. They go back into the blood after they have digested a meal, thereby increasing the ability of nature to take care of digestion without exhausting other organs.

High livers need feel no considerable hardship if they will eat one of these little tablets after a rich or late meal.

It is a splendid gift to the stomach and a good habit to form. Stuart's dyspepsia Tablets sell for 50c per package at every drug store.

Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address P. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

VICTORIOUS BADGERS WELCOMED HOME

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 9.—The members of the victorious Wisconsin team were given a great ovation by the students when they arrived home from Minneapolis yesterday. Fully 500 students were assembled at the depot. The coach bearing the varsity men was delayed at Elroy, and the crowd waited for half an hour.

When the train was pulling into the station the men were greeted with the varsity toast and each member of the team was given an individual cheer after which they were rushed to a waiting bus which had been hired by the students and with a hundred cheering rooters pulling it by means of a long rope the players were paraded through the town and out to the university lower campus, a mile and a half from the depot.

The bus with its load of players was hauled up twelve steps to the entrance of the state historical library, where the coaches were forced to mount the driver's seat and make a speech.

"Arne" Lerum, the old Badger guard, paid a compliment to "Coots" Cunningham, the diminutive 125 pound halfback, and also to the Gopher cheer leader, who, when the little fellow was injured, led three cheers for him from the Minnesota section.

"Keekie" Moll, the star quarter, can have the town now if he wishes it. Tales of his wonderful booting has set the rooters in a delirium of joy and he was kept busy shaking off tacklers—congratulators. One of Moll's drop kicks from the fifty yard line missed its mark by a narrow margin and the other, although high and accurate, fell five yards short.

Coach Barry outlined the work for the Chicago game, saying that the varsity men could be excused from practice today and that the work will be easy for two or three days and then followed up by the final spurt for the year. Every man on the team is in perfect physical condition barring a few minor bruises.

SPARTA DEFEATS EAU CLAIRE TEAM

SPARTA, Wis., Nov. 9.—The Sparta High school foot ball team added another victory to the already lengthy list Saturday when they defeated the fast team of Eau Claire by the wide margin of 27 to 11.

Eau Claire started the game with a rush, and in the first four minutes, by a trick play went over for a touchdown. The Sparta team came back strong, and in a few minutes scored a touch down from a forward pass to Hatch. Sparta, with short end runs and line bucks carried the ball the length of the field, where McDonald was sent over for another touch down. Eau Claire kicked to Sparta and in a few minutes Jackson was sent over for the third touch down. Nearly at the close of the first half, Eau Claire got away with a long forward pass for a touch down. Score first half, Sparta 16, Eau Claire, 11.

The Sparta team went into the game the second half playing faster than in the first half. The whole team worked together like a machine, and the Eau Claire team could not stand the fierce plunges of the Spartans. During this half Eau Claire did not have a chance to score. Sparta scored two touch downs in the first half, making the final score 27 to 11 in favor of "Sparta High."

This is the first time that Eau Claire's goal line has been crossed in six years. The Eau Claire team used the forward pass the first half for long gains, but were unable to gain with it the second half. They resorted to trick plays mostly the last half. Sparta used the old style football, because they did not have to use anything else, making gains through Eau Claire's line at will.

Fully five hundred students met the Sparta Team at Eau Claire, all wearing badges bearing the inscription, "We must beat Sparta." The Spartans were treated royally by the Eau Claire people, and all report a good time. It was plain to be seen the Eau Claire people hold no grudge against the Spartans. They congratulated the Sparta people on having such a good football team, and told the boys it was just a case of the "best team winning the game."

SPORTING BRIEFS

CHICAGO—Jake Schaefer, the great billiard player, has been greatly improving in health since he has arrived in Colorado, and it is not unlikely that he will again resume the game next spring.

CLEVELAND—The Naps have drafted Bill Schwartz, the old Cleveland player from Akron, Ohio. Cleveland has also drafted Infielder Evans of the Jackson club of the Michigan league.

ANNAPOLIS—Howard Jones has been spoken of as coach of the Midland for next season, but it is not known whether the navy can get him away from the Syracuse team where he has had remarkable success this season.

DENVER—Sam Mertes predicts a baseball war. He says that the American Association is laying wires for a team in Chicago and possibly Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. With these teams he thinks they can put up a good fight.

SYRACUSE—The reason for the tie with Princeton has been laid to the fact that Walter Camp has been assisting with Tad Jones, brother of Howard Jones the regular coach.

WORRY HAS REDUCED PLAYER MERKLE

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 9.—Fred Merkle, who has been barnstorming in the east with the New York Giants since the end of the season, returned home broken down in health as the result of the terrible strain he has been undergoing since he lost the pennant for the Giants.

"No, I guess it didn't worry me," remarked Merkle, referring to the incident in the well-remembered game with the Cubs when he caused a tie game by failing to touch second base in the ninth inning. "No, probably not," he continued, "I only lost twenty pounds since the affair came off."

And he showed it, for his face is thin and drawn, and he has lost lots of the bulkiness that has always been characteristic of him.

LAD MURDERED BY HIS BOY PLAYMATE

TEN-YEAR-OLD BRAINERD BOY
SHOT AFTER QUARREL

MURDERER IS HEEDLESS

Child Who is Now a Murderer, is Unconcerned Over Murder and Sleeps Calmly

BRAINERD, Minn., Nov. 9.—John Bushaway, Jr., the ten-year-old son of John Bushaway of West Brainerd, was instantly killed by Ralph Murray, the eleven-year-old son of a neighbor. The boys had quarreled, and Murray went to the house and got Mr. Murray's rifle and loaded it, and shot Bushaway in the throat, killing him instantly.

The only witness to the crime was Frank Bushaway, an eight-year-old brother of the victim. The Murray boy, after being taken to the jail, was very unconcerned, the matron says, and went to sleep early, apparently taking the matter little to heart.

The two Bushaway boys were piling brush across the street from the Murray home when the tragedy occurred. The shooting grew out of childish bickering.

Bushaway and a younger brother and a land named Eddie Crowley had been playing together, and they quarreled. According to the story told by Mrs. Eugene Murray, the mother of the lad who did the shooting, she had called her son and the Crowley boy into the house to stop the quarrel, but afterwards had gone to a neighbor's house. She was absent from the house about ten minutes, and upon her return she says that she met the Crowley boy running home, crying.

She asked what was the matter but he did not stop to answer. When she reached home she found that Ralph had got down his father's 35-caliber automatic rifle, and had shot Bushaway and had put the rifle back in its place. Mrs. Murray immediately notified the officers.

Frank Bushaway, the eight-year-old brother of the boy who was killed, ran to his home and told of the tragedy. According to his story, the boys quarreled and young Murray started for the house, declaring that he "would fix him." He went into the house and returned in a few minutes with the rifle.

He was not strong enough to lift the rifle to his shoulder, but shot while holding the weapon by his side. The bullet penetrated the Bushaway lad's jugular vein and shattered the backbone, causing instant death.

When questioned by the coroner, Ralph admitted the shooting and declared that the boys had been teasing him and that the Bushaway boy hit him with a brick. He was taken into custody and is being kept in the home of the sheriff pending the inquest, which is being held today.

A GOOD START PROMISED.

Raymond (Patterson), the inspired of all writers when it comes to speaking for the national republican organization, calls attention to a quiet little plank in the republican platform committing Judge Taft to a law to prevent the future watering of stocks, a clause which he says the judge touched on "incidentally" in his speeches and in his letter of acceptance. Owing to its importance, Raymond wonders why it attracted so little attention.

It is probable that the very fact that it was treated so "incidentally" is responsible for its having created no deep impression, the triviality with which it was handled leading to the conclusion that it was written to be forgotten. However, the declaration now by so accurate an authority as Raymond that it is to be one of the big achievements of President-elect Taft, puts a new face on its significance, and the question may be fairly raised whether the candidate did not purposely slight it in his discussions in order to avoid antagonizing the support of those who man the pumps that have flooded the country with sopping securities. The writer thus predicts the action of the new administration in dealing with the plank in question:

"It is a singular thing, however, that one of the salient policies of the Taft administration has been ignored during the last campaign. The republican platform had a short but significant declaration which might have attracted more attention than it did, because it is destined to be the keynote of the new administration. In his speech of acceptance, and occasionally during the address, he made to voters, Mr. Taft referred almost incidentally to a well formed plan he has had in mind to put a stop to the evils of watered stocks and the unloading of railroad securities upon an unsuspecting public without there being any real value behind them. This is a radical step forward, and yet it is almost certain to be taken in the early days of the Taft administration.

The president elect believes that every dollar of railroad securities now in existence, no matter whether it represents real value or pure water, should be amply protected. He will not interfere in any way with the market value of these securities, nor will he insist that rates shall be fixed on the basis of the existing cost of the railroads, and not upon the basis of the securities actually outstanding.

On the other hand, the first distinguishing feature of the Taft administration is to be an attempt by the national government to put a stop to the watering of stock and to the indiscriminate issue of bonds by the interstate railroads.

"In his inaugural address and in subsequent messages to congress President Taft will urge the passage of legislation giving to the interstate commission the right to supervise all issues of future securities by railroads engaged in interstate commerce. The whole purpose of this is to protect the people against such financing as that by which Harriman and others have unloaded railroad securities of doubtful value upon an unsuspecting public."

It may be said with reason that in permitting innocent purchasers to retain these watered stocks and reap whatever dividends they pay, the government must extend the same privilege to the Harrimans and Morgans, who are responsible for the crimes that resulted in their issue. However, we cannot deny that so far as the immediate present is concerned, prosperity will be better protected by adopting the theory that "better a thousand guilty escape than one innocent person suffer." Of course there is the other side, that millions of innocent people are suffering in that they must pay freight and passenger rates extortionately high in order that the roads may pay dividends on their fictitious stocks, but the "dear people" are quite used to it, and if the Taft administration shall take serious and efficient measures to prevent further deceptions of the sort, the public will gladly permit the money gormands to glut themselves upon the pelf of the past. It may be added that, under the new deal wherein stock issues must represent actual investment, new lines of roads may be projected which, in competition with the old lines saddled with water and bonds, and withheld from consolidation by the actual enforcement of the anti-trust laws, will be able to make rates so low as to acquire the business of the old lines, which may naturally drift into financial straits eventually falling in to the hands of receivers, from whose tender care they may come rejuvenated, their water having been wrung out by natural business process as thoroughly as any law could do it.

Incidentally, it will be noted from Raymond's comment that the law which Mr. Taft proposes to have passed is practically identical with the law dealing with the same subject now in force in Wisconsin. So the great work of the La Follette whom the republicans twice kicked out of their national convention, once literally and once figuratively, continues to be a model for the nation, just as it is announced his physical valuation law is to become the pattern for a federal law on that subject.

The American people want to see these laws enacted. That is why they cheered La Follette enthusiastically for thirty minutes in the republican convention. And if Mr. Taft gives them these laws, and more like them, he will have made good the promises of Theodore Roosevelt and disappointed John D. Rockefeller and a lot of his kind most terribly.

"Ike" Stephenson has been nominated for the senate by a vote which conclusively showed that he was not the choice of anything like a majority of republicans, and he didn't carry La Crosse county; away up in Trempealeau county one poor little reactionary was elected to the legislature, and let our organs of monopoly wax arrogant and bluff and threaten as though they had done something. Roosevelt carried this county four years ago by 2,400, and Davidson carried it by 1,675 in 1906. This year, with their fervid editorial supporting Taft and Davidson, the former carried the county by 197 and the latter by 311, a smaller majority than was given any but one of the other candidates, none of whom they supported. In the preceding primary they utterly failed to nominate a single candidate whose name was favorably mentioned in their columns. Not a single instance can be cited in which they have made a serious effort on behalf of any candidate during the past six years, where any opposition developed, in which their man was not defeated. These facts are unimportant, and we merely cite them to advise men in public life of the inconsequential nature of their opposition. Let the heathen rage.

A federal circuit court has held that the government is correct in its assertion that the tobacco trust is an illegal organization, but it denies its plea for a re-election pending an appeal to the supreme court. It seems that upon law specifically provides a prison penalty for these "malefactors of great wealth" there is nothing the government can do but impotently accept judicial affirmation of the existence of crime which it is powerless either to prevent or to punish.

Just as American swells have invested thousands in directorate gowns we hear that Paris is about to revive the crinoline. From the standpoint of a casual observer we rise to suggest that a combination of the two would attract considerable attention.

Well, it's a good thing for Nat Goodwin! What? Why, didn't he (Goodwin) a (Good)rich woman? Good!

Incidentally, it may not be accurate to say Edna Goodrich can only half marry Nat Goodwin, but she can only half change her name.

How They Heard the Truth.

Several ladies and gentlemen were traveling together in a railway carriage from Dresden to Leipzig. They were mostly strangers to one another, but the conversation soon became general.

One of the ladies had been at the Court theater the night before, where the opera of "Euryanthe" had been sung, and was loud in her expressions of disapproval.

"Worse than all," she went on, "that Mme. Schroder is much too old for her part; her singing is becoming unbearable. Don't you think so, too?" she asked, turning to the gentleman next to her.

"Wouldn't you rather tell all this to Mme. Schroder herself? She is sitting opposite to you?" he replied, coldly.

After the general silence which followed this remark the critical lady turned to the singer with many confused apologies.

"It is that horrid critic, Schmieler, who has influenced my judgment concerning your singing. I believe it is he who is always writing against you. He must be a most disagreeable and pedantic person."

"Had you not better tell all this to Mr. Schmieler himself?" calmly inquired Mme. Schroder. "He is sitting next to you."—London Globe

A Different Show.

It is related that a farmer visiting Philadelphia wandered with his wife into a theater where one of the gloomiest of gloomy Ibsen plays was in progress.

For about half an act the good couple listened in puzzled silence to the mournful remarks thrown out by the group of Norwegians infesting the stage. Then at last, after a particularly harrowing prediction of sudden death to everybody in the last act, the farmer turned to his wife with these words:

"Say, Mandy, I'm darned if I like 'The Merry Widow.' Let's go."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Practice Makes Perfect.

Ethel's father would not be described, even by those most intimate with his many good points, as a handsome man. The Apollo Belvedere had nothing to fear from him in a beauty contest. His homeliness was the matter of jesting remark recently, and the little girl took it all in.

"Papa," she asked the next day, "God made you, didn't he?"

"Yes, dear," replied the father.

"And did he make me, too?" she questioned further.

"Certainly," was the reply as he turned back to his book.

"Well," commented Ethel as she looked in the mirror, "I guess he must be doing better work now."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Out of the Jungle

Kermitt Roosevelt was talking to a reporter about his forthcoming trip to Africa.

"I hope in the African wilds," said the young man, "to have many exciting and novel adventures. But I trust that I will engage in no such startling feat as was once undertaken by a New Yorker.

"This New Yorker, a big game hunter of many years' experience, was lion-shooting in Uganda. He had excellent luck. Nearly every day he posed in a complacent attitude beside a freshly killed lion and his photographer snapped him for the magazine.

"One afternoon the photographer, who was taking a nap in the hut, was awakened by the loud noise. He rose and looked out. Sprinting toward him from the jungle, hat gone and coat tails flying, came his chief and with terrible roars and growls a huge lion bounded at his heels.

"The photographer gazed spell-bound at the strange and exciting picture. His chief, perceiving him, shouted:

"Quick, quick! Open the door, George! I'm bringing him home alive!"—New York Times.

HOW TO CURE STOMACH TROUBLES.

By a Simple Home Recipe.

We want every reader of this paper who suffers from Indigestion, Belching, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia and a dozen other kindred ailments to know how to cure themselves with a simple mixture of three ingredients that you can have your druggist mix for you or you can easily mix them at home. The ingredients are as follows: Prosene Compound, one ounce; Compound Tincture of Cinchona, one ounce, and Sherry Wine, half a pint. Shake together in a bottle and take a teaspoonful in a wine-glassful of water half an hour before meals. No sufferer from Stomach troubles should put off having his druggist mix this up for him. Prosene Compound is a product of the Laboratories of the Cooper Pharmaceutical Co., Chicago. It can be found in the prescription department of any first class Drug Store as well as the other ingredients.

WELL KNOWN ACTRESS
Gives Recipe for a Home-made
Quinine Hair Tonic

Mabel Graham, now with Maxwell & Bell's "Girl from Dixie" company, has a head of hair that causes her to be envied by every woman in the audience. In the great scene in the second act, where she is rescued from the burning building, her head rests on the shoulder of her rescuer while her hair reaches below his waist. Her hair is a wonderful brown and so long and abundant that it always brings forth a chorus of "Ohs!" "Ahs!" and "Isn't she lovely?"

When asked by a New York reporter, for the secret of her beautiful hair Miss Graham ripplingly laughed and answered: "The secret? There's no secret about it. I use only a common quinine hair tonic to keep my scalp and hair in perfect condition."

"Not —'s Hair Tonic?" asked the reporter, mentioning one of the best known brands on the market. "I should say not," replied Miss Graham. "I make my own hair tonic and then I know there is quinine in it—and then, too, it costs me only one-third as much. I get an ounce of Beta Quinol at the drug store and then mix it with half a pint of water and half a pint of alcohol. I simply shake these well together and then I have more than a pint of good quinine hair tonic. It keeps the hair soft and fluffy, promotes its growth and—well, you can see for yourself what it does—"

And she shook her beautiful tresses. Perhaps other women could use Miss Graham's recipe with profit.

"Do you know," he said, with hesitation, "that when you were singing those songs I had the feeling that you didn't quite belong to this country?"

The parson laughed, rubbing together his thin hands.

"She doesn't," he said incisively. Then when Joy protested, he explained at length, in his easy, leisurely fashion.

"This is the age of compromise, and she abhors compromise. Black is black and white is white to her. Anything complex distresses her. She hates problems, don't you, my dear?"

"I have not the patience or the brains to solve them."

"Her brains are all right." He addressed himself to Charteris, conveying the idea that this intimate personal talk was perfectly natural and the seal, as it were, of a friendship just begun. "But she is half-Mottisfont."

"That is the half I hate."

"Oh, no, you don't. You hate the defects of the Mottisfont qualities, not the qualities themselves, which are admirable." Again he turned to Hugo, speaking as if Joy were not present: "She makes a good many people in Henshaw happy, and in particular one lazy old man, because she is happy herself, content with the simple pleasures of the passing hour, satisfied with small things because they belong to her. That is the true wisdom. She sings little songs to a guitar, but she will tell you that she has no ambition to sing big songs, to a big public, to the accompaniment of a grand piano."

"Not I," said Joy.

"I am different. I mean I was different. I wanted to sing the big song. But now," he laughed pleasantly, as if sensible of the vanity of human ambitions, "I am like her, she has taught me the great lesson: once I burned to discover a new continent, I found instead the Boletus Vennablis."

At ten o'clock this first never-to-be-forgotten evening drew to a close, but the parson, most hospitable of men, insisted upon refreshment being offered to his guest. Hugo followed Joy downstairs and into the dining-room. Upon the table were sandwiches and whiskey and Apollinaris.

"I made the sandwiches," said Joy. "I shall be insulted if you don't eat some."

Then, very seriously, she thanked him for coming.

"You have done father so much good. Really, you seemed a sort of Aladdin. And on your magical carpet we have visited all the delightful places we shall never see."

"Never?"

"Father will never see them, at any rate." Her voice faltered, almost broke, but she continued vehemently: "You have no idea what he really is. I dare say you have misjudged him. Everybody does. He has had great disappointments. And, of course, he ought never to have come here."

"Whatever he lost by coming, he gained—"

The slight pause before the pronoun made her glance at him with apprehension. If Joy had revealed herself as other than the Grand Vizier of her father, so also Hugo, in this seductive atmosphere of home, quite as unconsciously, let slip his mask of indifference and aloofness.

"Yes; he has me;" then she laughed nervously; "but I'm not so conceited as to flatter myself that I make up to him for what he lost."

"You do."

"Ask Esme Burgess."

The sudden introduction of the young fellow's name had an effect. At once the talk ceased to be intimate. Burgess played gooseberry. They couldn't escape from him, or from what he had done, and was doing, and would be likely to do. He accompanied them to the hall door. But at the very last he vanished.

"You are coming tomorrow?"

"Yes," said Hugo.

For an instant, as her hand lay in his, as he felt the soft pressure of her fingers, so eloquent of the gratitude and liking that she could not translate into speech, he was tempted to fling prudence to the winds and say: "I am a leper, but you have touched me, and I am clean."

Instead, he said, with a curious chill in his voice: "Good-night, Miss Vennable."

Other evenings followed. The intimacy deepened and widened. Joy always greeted Hugo with a smile, and he never paused to reflect what its absence would have meant to him. Also, being confirmed in his belief that Joy would marry Burgess, he interpreted the smile as inspired by gratitude. He accepted it as back-sheesh.

She proposed that they should play golf together. The epidemic had worn itself out; ten days had passed without a fresh case being reported; but Joy showed scars. Her colour was less bright; shadows lay beneath her eyes. Tisdale had prescribed golf, as being preferable to quinine or iron.

She asked Hugo to play in the presence of the parson, who said briskly: "Yes, yes, the very thing! Give her a game tomorrow."

So it came about that they played regularly upon the days when Hugo was not shooting. The Misses Mottisfont were unaffectedly shocked. For three evenings in succession the Aunts discussed, from every point of view, the propriety of second marriages of which hitherto they had disapproved. Unquestionably, if poor George Vennable had remarried some sensible woman after dear Alicia's death, Joy would not be playing golf with a tall, handsome stranger of whom nobody, not even Colonel Jaland, who went to town to have his hair cut, knew anything at all!

Hugo played golf, as has been said, like a professional; having, indeed, devoted as much time and ability to the ancient game as would have served to master a foreign language or higher mathematics. He was therefore able to coach Joy, who hitherto had coached others; and in golf, as in other matters, she found herself deferring to superior knowledge and experience. Add to this, her endless speculations concerning a man who with abilities far above the average was seemingly satisfied with a life without definite aims. Hugo, in Joy's mind, loomed larger and larger as a huge note of interrogation.

Each day, too, she became more conscious of his singular intermitting silence. He seemed to shy away from certain subjects. She did not know what he believed or disbelieved, and this to anyone with Mottisfont blood in their veins was exceedingly unsatisfactory. Joy and Sir Giles held the conviction in common that in politics and religion one's flag ought to be nailed to the mast. Sir Giles was found of saying: "What is right is right, and what is wrong is wrong." No man, for instance, with any pretensions to being considered "sound," could uphold the passing of such an iniquitous measure as the Deceased Wife's Sister Bill. You might as well debate the propriety of Free Love or the nationalization of land.

However, Esme Burgess served as a peg upon which to hang conversation. The young fellow was doing brilliantly. There could be no argument about that. The big papers reported his speeches in full. Every-body said that he had won the Norfolk bye-election off his own bat. The New Brooms—it was confidently predicted—were likely to make a clean sweep of it. The disaffected on both sides were asking questions and receiving staggering answers. "Down with Expediency!" had been adopted as a sort of battle-cry. In the New Year number of the Saxon, Burgess published a remarkable article setting forth in detail the lies told by both parties during the recent election. Nobody reading this paper could doubt that the truth was being presented by the Saxon, as a substitute for soft soap and bunkum.

"Burgess has come to stay," said Hugo.

THE TURN OF THE TIDE

By Horace Annecley Vachell
[Copyrighted, 1908.]

Hugo thought of Tisdale and Burgess. If she married one of them, her life would become urban and must remain so. And with the wider knowledge which had come suddenly to him within the past two hours, he realized that she, being of Arcadia, a nymph of woods and streams, would never be able to adapt herself to the dun, formal streets and squares of a great city. He had been right when he divined that she would make a splendid helpmeet for a pioneer.

"Do you know," he said, with hesitation, "that when you were singing those songs I had the feeling that you didn't quite belong to this country?"

The parson laughed, rubbing together his thin hands.

"She doesn't," he said incisively. Then when Joy protested, he explained at length, in his easy, leisurely fashion.

"Not I," said Joy.

"I am different. I mean I was different. I wanted to sing the big song. But now," he laughed pleasantly, as if sensible of the vanity of human ambitions, "I am like her, she has taught me the great lesson: once I burned to discover a new continent, I found instead the Boletus Vennablis."

At ten o'clock this first never-to-be-forgotten evening drew to a close, but the parson, most hospitable of men, insisted upon refreshment being offered to his guest. Hugo followed Joy downstairs and into the dining-room. Upon the table were sandwiches and whiskey and Apollinaris.

"I made the sandwiches," said Joy. "I shall be insulted if you don't eat some."

Then, very seriously, she thanked him for coming.

"You have done father so much good. Really, you seemed a sort of Aladdin. And on your magical carpet we have visited all the delightful places we shall never see."

"Never?"

"Father will never see them, at any rate." Her voice faltered, almost broke, but she continued vehemently: "You have no idea what he really is. I dare say you have misjudged him. Everybody does. He has had great disappointments. And, of course, he ought never to have come here."

"Whatever he lost by coming, he gained—"

The slight pause before the pronoun made her glance at him with apprehension. If Joy had revealed herself as other than the Grand Vizier of her father, so also Hugo, in this seductive atmosphere of home, quite as unconsciously, let slip his mask of indifference and aloofness.

"Yes; he has me;" then she laughed nervously; "but I'm not so conceited as to flatter myself that I make up to him for what he lost."

"You do."

"Ask Esme Burgess."

The sudden introduction of the young fellow's name had an effect. At once the talk ceased to be intimate. Burgess played gooseberry. They couldn't escape from him, or from what he had done, and was doing, and would be likely to do. He accompanied them to the hall door. But at the very last he vanished.

"You are coming tomorrow?"

"Yes," said Hugo.

For an instant, as her hand lay in his, as he felt the soft pressure of her fingers, so eloquent of the gratitude and liking that she could not translate into speech, he was tempted to fling prudence to the winds and say: "I am a leper, but you have touched me, and I am clean."

Instead, he said, with a curious chill in his voice: "Good-night, Miss Vennable."

Other evenings followed. The intimacy deepened and widened. Joy always greeted Hugo with a smile, and he never paused to reflect what its absence would have meant to him. Also, being confirmed in his belief that Joy would marry Burgess, he interpreted the smile as inspired by gratitude. He accepted it as back-sheesh.

She proposed that they should play golf together. The epidemic had worn itself out; ten days had passed without a fresh case being reported; but Joy showed scars. Her colour was less bright; shadows lay beneath her eyes. Tisdale had prescribed golf, as being preferable to quinine or iron.

She asked Hugo to play in the presence of the parson, who said briskly: "Yes, yes, the very thing! Give her a game tomorrow."

So it came about that they played regularly upon the days when Hugo was not shooting. The Misses Mottisfont were unaffectedly shocked. For three evenings in succession the Aunts discussed, from every point of view, the propriety of second marriages of which hitherto they had disapproved. Unquestionably, if poor George Vennable had remarried some sensible woman after dear Alicia's death, Joy would not be playing golf with a tall, handsome stranger of whom nobody, not even Colonel Jaland, who went to town to have his hair cut, knew anything at all!

Hugo played golf, as has been said, like a professional; having, indeed, devoted as much time and ability to the ancient game as would have served to master a foreign language or higher mathematics. He was therefore able to coach Joy, who hitherto had coached others; and in golf, as in other matters, she found herself deferring to superior knowledge and experience. Add to this, her endless speculations concerning a man who with abilities far above the average was seemingly satisfied with a life without definite aims. Hugo, in Joy's mind, loomed larger and larger as a huge note of interrogation.

Each day, too, she became more conscious of his singular intermitting silence. He seemed to shy away from certain subjects. She did not know what he believed or disbelieved, and this to anyone with Mottisfont blood in their veins was exceedingly unsatisfactory. Joy and Sir Giles held the conviction in common that in politics and religion one's flag ought to be nailed to the mast. Sir Giles was found of saying: "What is right is right, and what is wrong is wrong." No man, for instance, with any pretensions to being considered "sound," could uphold the passing of such an iniquitous measure as the Deceased Wife's Sister Bill. You might as well debate the propriety of Free Love or the nationalization of land.

However, Esme Burgess served as a peg upon which to hang conversation. The young fellow was doing brilliantly. There could be no argument about that. The big papers reported his speeches in full. Every-body said that he had won the Norfolk bye-election off his own bat. The New Brooms—it was confidently predicted—were likely to make a clean sweep of it. The disaffected on both sides were asking questions and receiving staggering answers. "Down with Expediency!" had been adopted as a sort of battle-cry. In the New Year number of the Saxon, Burgess published a remarkable article setting forth in detail the lies told by both parties during the recent election. Nobody reading this paper could doubt that the truth was being presented by the Saxon, as a substitute for soft soap and bunkum.

"Burgess has come to stay," said Hugo.

"You really think so?"

"He will go very far."

In his mind was a vision of Burgess ascending triumphantly to the skies, scaling inaccessible peaks, and always carrying Joy with him.

Grab Bar on Side of Car Comes Loose and Man Is Hurl'd Beneath Wheels of Train

C. L. Mayo, aged about 35 years and residing at Minneapolis suffered the loss of a portion of his foot in a railroad accident at Weaver and is now lying in the Winona General hospital, having undergone an operation during which a portion of the injured member was amputated. Mayo is a brakeman on the Milwaukee road and left his home in Minneapolis on the second section of extra freight train No. 72, south-bound on the river division.

Grab Bar Gives Way.
He attempted to climb on one of the cars after a brief stop at Weaver, just north of Minneapolis, when a grab-bar on the side of the car pulled out throwing the man under the wheels. The train was stopped at once and he was hurried to Winona. The ambulance was in waiting at the station and he was removed as quickly as possible to the hospital, where it was found four toes had been crushed and an operation was necessary.

Although Mayo will likely be lame for the remainder of his life, his injury is not necessarily serious, unless complications set in.

ENGINES COLLIDE
ON SIDE TRACK

Sunday morning engine No. 949, pulling passenger train No. 3, ran into the side of switch engine No. 1116 and stove in the tank. No. 1116 was standing on a side track, but did not clear the main track. Engineer Snyder on the passenger train thought that the switch engine would pull out of the way and did not shut off until he was within a couple hundred feet of the engine. Then he applied the brakes, but they did not hold, resulting in a side collision.

Mr. William Clark, a brakeman on the River Division of the Milwaukee road had a close call yesterday while his train was pulling into the La Crosse yards.

Mr. Clark was on the top of the cars and was looking for signals as the train approached the Rose street bridge. He noticed the bridge and bent down so as to pass under it, but just as he was under the bridge a signal was given and he raised to see it and in doing so was struck by the bridge and was severely bruised. Clark clung to the top of the car and thus prevented himself from falling to the ground and possibly being thrown under the wheels.

SPARTA MAN IS HURT IN A FALL

SPARTA, Wis., Nov. 9.—E. Y. Johnson, janitor of the Central school in Tomah sustained a severe injury from a fall down stairs and miraculously escaped with his life. He was carrying a heavy flower urn to the cellar for winter storage when in striking on his shoulder and head, breaking the shoulder and cutting an ugly gash in his head. There was no one in the building at the time of the accident and he lay on the cellar floor unconscious for some time before he recovered sufficiently to drag himself upstairs to the telephone and summon aid.

Girl Has Narrow Escape
Miss Mabel Hushka of Sparta who is attending Beloit college had a very narrow escape recently from losing her eyesight as the result of an explosion of chemicals caused by the carelessness of a young man working in the laboratory of that college who poured sulphuric acid into a bottle of ammonia. Instantly an explosion occurred which threw Miss Hushka to the floor. The explosion threw the high explosives in her face and arms, severely burning her. She was rushed into open air, her face and arms bathed in ammonia and taken to her room. For a time it was believed that she would be totally blind as the result of the accident, but she is recovering and although she may always carry scars of the accident she will probably regain her sight in full.Searching For Bank Robber
Sheriff Hillard went to Grand Rapids last Saturday to identify the fourth of the Warrens bank robbers who was supposed to be under the surveillance of detectives in that city. But upon arriving there and seeing the man suspected was found that he was not the party wanted.

The detectives are working hard in an effort to capture the fourth robber and no doubt will soon land their man. The hearing of the last two captured, Clements and Barry, will be held before Justice Doxrud on Wednesday morning of this week.

Lunatic Sent to Mendota
"Billy the Lunatic," as the crazy man captured in Sparta by Chief of Police Martin J. Holmes last week was dubbed has been sent to Mendota by the Monroe county authorities. He was irrational nearly all the time of his confinement in the Monroe county jail. During a sane spell of a few moments he gave his name as Bill Sanguine but refused to divulge his home and when further questioned became irrational. Investigation threw no light on his identity or the asylum from which he escaped, if he ever was confined in one. His story about being hit on the head is borne out by a scar there and it is thought that he fell in some railroad yard striking his head, which rendered his mind unbalanced.

It's a Good Sound Common Sense Policy

To use medicines only of KNOWN COMPOSITION, and which contain neither alcohol nor habit-forming drugs. It is foolish—often dangerous to do otherwise. The most intelligent people, and many of the most successful, conscientious physicians, follow this judicious course of action. The leading medical authorities, of all schools of medicine, endorse the ingredients composing Dr. Pierce's medicines. These are plainly printed on wrappers and attested under oath. There's no secrecy; an open publicity, square-deal policy is followed by the makers.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

THE ONE REMEDY for woman's ailments, sold by druggists, devised and gotten up by a regularly graduated physician of vast experience in treating woman's peculiar diseases and carefully adapted to work in harmony with her delicate organization, by an experienced and skilled specialist in her maladies.

THE ONE REMEDY for woman's ailments, sold by druggists, which contains neither alcohol (which to most women is the rankest poison) or other injurious or habit-forming drugs.

THE ONE REMEDY for women, the composition of which is so perfect and good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient, in plain English on its outside bottle-wrapper, and attest the correctness of the same under oath.

We have a profound desire to avoid all offense to the most delicate sensitiveness of modest women, for whom we entertain the most sincere respect and admiration. We shall not, therefore, particularize here concerning the symptoms and peculiar ailments incident to the sex for which Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has for more than 40 years proven such a boon. We cannot, however, do a better service to the afflicted of the gentler sex than to refer them to Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a great family doctor book of 1000 pages, bound in cloth and given away gratis, or sent, post-paid, on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps—to cover cost of mailing only. All the delicate ailments and matters about which every woman, whether young or old, single or married, should know, but which their sense of delicacy makes them hesitate to ask even the family physician about, are made plain in this great book. Write for it.

WISCONSIN CAN'T COMPEL LIGHTING

WINONA, Minn., Nov. 9.—The effort to compel the City of Winona to light the Wisconsin road from Bluff Siding leading to the high wagon bridge across the river at this point has been abandoned, at least so far as the office of the attorney general of Wisconsin is concerned it being held such a regulation could not be enforced. A letter to this effect was received by City Attorney Richard A. Randall of this city, who has been working on this matter ever since his return from his vacation at the end of the summer.

The requests for the light had been by the residents of the Wisconsin side of the river and were caused by the numerous road houses located along the road across the river from this city. Brawls, fights and attempted murders have taken place at this point and the place has a reputation as the hangout of a tough element.

The road, although in Wisconsin territory is cared for by Minnesota and is said to be the best road in Buffalo county.

One Dredge is Also Being Constructed for the Upper River Work Next Spring

The government work on the river has been shut down with the exception of a survey that is being conducted as usual, in order that the work can be laid out for next spring. This work will depend largely upon the amount of money appropriated by congress during the winter session.

The work at the government boat yards is being continued. There are now 20 barges and one dredge boat outfit building at present, and the officials expect that they will be in shape for use when the river opens up in the spring.

The work last spring was greatly delayed on account of the high water and the government work was not commenced in earnest until about the 1st of August. The water was usually high however and undoubtedly the work next year will be started much earlier than it was this season.

DEDICATION AT PRAIRIE DU CHIEN

BISHOP SCHWEBACH OFFICIATES THERE YESTERDAY

LARGE CLASS IS CONFIRMED

Church Members From Various Cities and Former Parishers From Distant Points are Sent

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., Nov. 9.—Special.—St. Gabriel's Catholic church was dedicated Sunday, Nov. 8th, with solemn and elaborate ceremonies, conducted by the Rt. Rev. James Schwebach, Bishop of La Crosse, assisted by Rt. Rev. Mgr. Abbelen of Milwaukee, a former priest of the parish.

The day was one of ideal Indian summer weather and the streets were thronged with townspeople, many from Dubuque, La Crosse and neighboring places, old parishers from St. Paul, Milwaukee, Chicago and other distant cities, all proud of their handsome church and happy in renewing old acquaintances.

The dedicatory service began at 10 o'clock a. m., Fr. Abbelen being speaker of the day, and the building was formally blessed and rededicated by Bishop Schwebach.

From 12 to 3 p. m. a four course dinner was served in the large dining room of the parish hall, which seats about one hundred persons. Over five hundred guests partook of the excellent menu and many more were served with ice cream and cake in the hall.

A musical program was rendered and an impromptu reception was held in the main hall giving the parishioners and others an opportunity for meeting the bishops, Father Abbelen and other dignitaries who were here for the ceremonies.

The confirmation by the Bishop, of a class of one hundred young people took place at 3 p. m. in the church.

This has been a red letter day for Catholics and all other residents of Prairie du Chien. The church is beautiful, handsomely furnished both within and without, is second to none in Wisconsin and to none of its size anywhere, and is one that adds greatly to the dignity of its home city.

Today the parochial schools were given a holiday.

Bishop Schwebach will confirm classes of communicants at St. John's Bohemian Catholic church, at St. Mary's Academy and at Sacred Heart College for boys in lower town.

Messrs. Fred and Frank Evans are here from Chicago for a short visit with their brothers Wm. and J. P. Evans, and with many old friends.

"WOMAN'S RIGHTS" SAYS MRS. TAFT

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Nov. 9.—Mrs. William H. Taft has decided ideas on the question of woman's suffrage. Her idea of the place of women in politics is that she should be content to vote and exercise her influence in her own family or social circle in behalf of the candidates she deems best fitted for office.

There was no restraint in Mrs. Taft's expression of her views and as she always does, she spoke in a straightforward simple manner.

GARDNER IS VICTOR OVER JIM CLABBE

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 9.—Jimmy Gardner of Lowell, Mass., defeated Jimmy Clabbe in the fifth round of the winup of the West Side club's opening show here. It was a brilliant match while it lasted, Gardner forcing the pace and Clabbe fighting on the defensive. Gardner appeared to be in fine shape, contrary to the reports that had been sent out previous to the battle.

A BLESSING TO MANY PEOPLE

This is a simple home recipe now being made known in all the larger cities through the newspapers. It is intended to check the many cases of Rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble which have made so many cripples and invalids and weaklings of some of our brightest and strongest people.

The druggists here have been notified to supply themselves with the ingredients, and the sufferer will have no trouble to obtain them. The prescription is as follows: Fluid Extract Pandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce, and Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Recent experiments prove this simple mixture effective in Rheumatism, because of its positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It compels these most vital organs to filter from the blood and system the waste impurities and uric acid which are the cause of rheumatism. It cleanses the kidneys strengthens them and removes quickly such symptoms as backache, blood disorders, bladder weakness, frequent urination, painful scalding and discolored urine. It acts as a powerful stimulant to the entire kidney and bladder structure.

Those who suffer and are accustomed to purchase a bottle of medicine should not let a little inconvenience interfere with making this up.

THE AGES OF POWERFUL MEN

Porfirio Diaz of Mexico, runs him a "close second," having been born on September 15, 1830, and is therefore only a month younger than the Austrian emperor. He was first elected president in 1876, and, with one short interval, has been president ever since.

The next in order of age is that somewhat erratic gentleman, King Leopold II. of Belgium, who was born April 9, 1835, and is now in his seventy-fourth year. Report says that he is still as gay as ever.

M. Armand Fallieres, the president of the French republic, was born November 6, 1841, and thus heads by three days King Edward VII. of England, who was born November 9 in the same year. Each is therefore in his sixty-seventh year, and they both appear to be hale and hearty.

Frederick VIII., king of Denmark is the next oldest ruler. He was 65 on June 3, while our old friend, Abdul Hamid II., is only 57. In spite of the visit of our fleet to Japan, it may be news to many persons that the present mikado of Japan is Mutsuhito, and as we cannot trace another Mutsuhito, he is apparently, Mutsuhito I. He is 56 years of age, having been born November 3, 1852.

Gustav V., king of Sweden, was born June 16, 1858, and William II, emperor of Germany, January 27, 1859, and they are therefore each of them about 50, and they approach nearest of all to our president in this respect. The czar of Russia is a mere youth, looked at from the European point of view. He is only 40, and lives in such seclusion that very little is really known about him. There remain Victor Emmanuel, king of Italy, who is 39, which of course, is very young for a king, and those royal infants, King Alfonso of Spain, who is 22, and King Manuel II. of Portugal, who is 19.

KAISER "KILLS" STORY

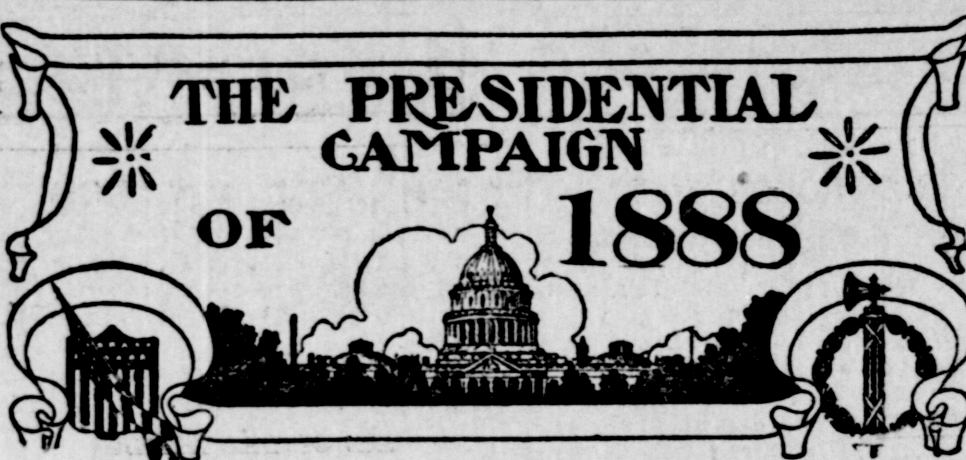

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—F. H. Scott, publisher of the Century Magazine, stated this evening that the omission in the next number of an interview with Emperor William was purely a matter of courtesy to the kaiser and that the magazine gladly assumes the large financial loss occasioned by the widespread advertising of the article written by William Bayard Hale.

In the smothered interview it is rumored that the kaiser spoke of President Roosevelt and matters affecting the United States, in a manner that would have aroused a great storm of public wrath in this country as has been aroused in Great Britain by the kaiser's interview in which he says he outlined the campaign against the Boers.

The Question of Satisfaction

When you buy a watch or a piece of jewelry, the question of satisfaction depends mainly upon two things—the selection of your merchandise is yours, and upon that you need to bestow careful attention. The other depends upon the skill, intelligence, efficiency and intentions of your dealer.

LA CROSSE, WIS.

The ascendancy of the democrats in 1884 was destined to be short lived because in the campaign of 1888 they asked for a popular referendum on the subject of protective tariff and the answer was affirmatively republican. Mr. Cleveland made the tariff the issue of the campaign of 1888 on his own responsibility. At this time there was a large surplus in the national treasury which led the president to conclude that more revenue was being collected than an economical administration of government required. The traditions of the democratic party were all in the direction of a low tariff and, as a whole they protested against the continuance indefinitely of the high duties which had been levied to carry on the civil war. Without consultation with his party associates, however, President Cleveland determined to throw down the gauntlet to the republicans and raise an issue on this score. Accordingly he devoted nearly the work of his annual message to December 6, 1887, to the subject of the tariff. On his own initiative he made the issue for his party upon which they would be forced to fight before the people in the campaign of 1888. His party was half stunned by the suddenness with which they had been forced into partisan position and yet they followed quite willingly and went down with Grover Cleveland to the defeat of 1888.

President Cleveland was nominated by his party without opposition. With him Allen G. Thurman, a sturdy, old-fashioned democrat of Ohio, was named for vice president. It was obviously impossible for any other man than Cleveland to be nominated, in view of the fact that Cleveland himself was the father of the tariff issue as raised in 1888.

The republicans were less unanimous in their choice of a ticket.

Blaine was still the favorite, but while absent in Italy he had declined to allow his name to be presented, saying he would not go through another contest like that of 1884, even though he knew positively that the presidency was at the other end of it. Other candidates who received prominent support in the convention were: John Sherman of Ohio, Walter Q. G. Ham of Indiana, Chauncey Depew of New York, Russell A. Alger of Michigan, Benjamin Harrison of Indiana. After seven ineffectual ballots Harrison was nominated, Levi P. Morton of New York was named for vice president.

The campaign became entirely a matter of education. Both Harrison and Cleveland remained at home and did not stump the country. There was an entire lack of vilification and mud slinging. The personality and private character of the candidates remained unquestioned to a considerable degree. It was solely a question of a popular referendum on the subject of whether the country was ready to reduce the protective tariff, which the republican party held to be responsible for national prosperity.

The only unfair incident of the campaign was that of the famous Murchison letter. It will be remembered that the English ambassador suggested that he (Murchison) was an ex-Englishman and desired to vote for that candidate for president who would look with greatest favor on the claims of Great Britain in pending international treaty legislation. The English ambassador's reply, favoring the election of Cleveland, was made a campaign document with sufficient effectiveness to cause Cleveland great unrest and the effect was finally strenuously counterbalanced by a demand for the recall of the offending English ambassador.

Now occurred a political paradox, for which Cleveland received 250,000 more popular votes than did Mr. Harrison. Mr. Harrison received 233 electoral votes as against 163 for Cleveland. In other words, the popular majority was Cleveland's and the electoral majority was Harrison's and since presidents are made by electors and not by voters, Harrison received his ticket to the White house. The only northern states carried by Cleveland were Connecticut and New Jersey. Both Indiana and New York, which he carried in 1884, were now lost by the democrats. The failure to carry New York was due mainly to the defection of Tammany hall from Mr. Cleveland. Besides the presidency the republicans controlled both houses of congress by small majorities. This outcome was interpreted as a victory for republican tariff principles and the immediate result was the famous McKinley tariff law, which has figured in American politics from that hour to this.

RELIGIOUS BELIEF MAN'S OWN AFFAIR

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 9.—Attacks upon President-elect Taft because of his religious views were vigorously answered by President Roosevelt in a letter made public yesterday.

The president holds that a man's creed is purely his own affair and that it interferes in no wise with the faithful discharge of his duty. To allow the subject of religion to enter the politics of this country, Mr. Roosevelt said, would be to mark back to bigotry.

DAVIS AND KING GIVEN YEAR EACH

Frank Davis (colored) and John King this afternoon pleaded guilty to the charge of carrying burglars' tools and were sentenced to serve one year in state's prison by Judge Fruit.

King and Davis, were arrested by the local police and had in their possession glass cutters, coal chisel and other burglars' instruments. They at that time pleaded not guilty and during the wait in jail attempted to escape by cutting a hole through the cement floor.

PRINTED BY PHOTOGRAPHY

CLEVELAND, Nov. 9.—The strike of the typesetters and printers on the two local Hungarian papers, the Hungarian News and the Hungarian Szabadsag, has had the result of producing one of the most novel publications ever issued here. The Szabadsag, which when translated means liberty, appeared as if it had been typewritten.

Typewriting was, in fact, the basis upon which the editor, E. P. Kohanyi, was able to produce his paper. He struck upon the novel idea of typing his news. The typewritten sheets then were photographed and from the photographs printing plates were made.

The engravings of the typewritten sheets were then placed together in consecutive order and from these the papers were printed.

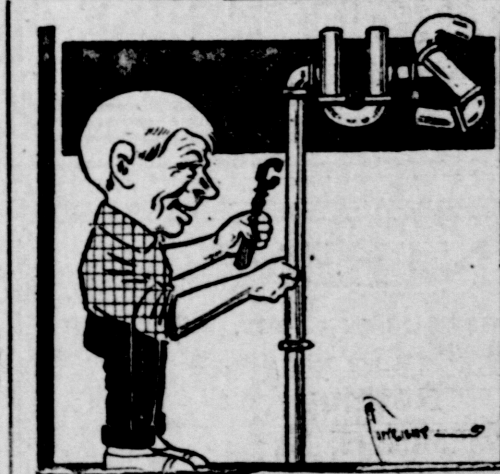

HELD UP IN BED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—With the piercing ray of a burglar's dark lantern shining in their eyes and two revolvers held by masked men covering them, the five members of the family of Charles E. Taynter, a wealthy granite dealer, lay in bed in the Taynter home at Borough Park, Brooklyn, for more than an hour yesterday morning, while a third masked burglar packed up $10,000 worth of jewelry and silverware. The thugs struck Taynter on the head with a blackjack while he slept. He is a famous pistol shot, and they evidently knew of the fact. Then the burglars bound Mrs. Taynter hand and foot and escaped with their loot.

HEALS S.S.S. OLD SORES

Before any sore can heal, the cause which produces it must be removed. As long as the blood, from which our systems receive their necessary nourishment and strength, remains impure and contaminated with disease germs, any old sore on the body will remain open, and resist every effort made to heal it. The nerves and tissues of the flesh around the places are continually fed with unhealthy matter and nature is simply disposing of the poison by draining it from the system through the sore. The only cure for an old sore is a thorough cleansing of the blood, entirely ridding the system of the cause. S. S. S. heals old sores by removing every particle of impurity from the circulation. It goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and so completely cleanses the circulation that there is no longer any impurity to drain through the sore, but the place is once more nourished with rich, healthy blood. S. S. S. heals the sore from the bottom, the place soon fills in with healthy, firm flesh, the tenderness leaves, all discharge ceases, the skin regains its natural color and when S. S. S. has thoroughly cleansed and purified the blood the place is permanently healed. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free to all who write.

DONNERSTAGS WERE AIDED TO ESCAPE

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 9.—The three Donnerstag brothers received help from a person outside in their sensational escape from the Dane county jail a week ago Sunday night. The brothers do not deny it. They even show the note by which the arrangements were made.

The note was soiled and crumpled and was with great difficulty made out. It read as follows:
"Will be here at window Tuesday night sure if the rope is done."
There is no signature, but on the reverse side appears the name E. T. Bayless of Pittsburg. The delivery was made Sunday night. The note refers to being under the window Tuesday morning—probably meaning during the early hours.

The difference in time is not explained, but it is thought the attempt was to have originally been made on Tuesday night, but the rope being finished and a heavy rain falling, was made on Sunday night.

HUNTS FOR MAN HE WOULD SLAY

DULUTH, Nov. 9.—Joseph Davisch, an Austrian, who says he is engaged to marry Ella Makki, a Finnish girl accused of killing an infant, has sworn to kill Gust Wuto, a Finn, who is accused by the girl: Wuto has gone to Finland, according to the girl's information, but Davisch hopes to find him in Northern Michigan.

Davisch learned of the pitiful tragedy in which the girl was involved here and in blind fury against the man who was responsible for her troubles he armed himself and came to Duluth from the range, where he has been employed, to hunt for the faithless lover.

IOWA HUNTER IS BADLY INJURED

EMMETSBURG, Iowa, Nov. 9.—Jackson Stafford was killed by the accidental discharge of a gun while he was hunting. The charge struck him in the face, tearing away a large part of the chin, the entire nose and one eye.

Part of his jaw was found fully thirty feet from where the accident occurred.

After the accident Stafford picked up the gun and walked to the barn, where his boys were at work. He refused to go into the house until one of his neighbors insisted that he should.

He could not talk and made his requests known by nodding his head and squeezing his hand he clasped. In this way he made his will, fully conscious to the last.

DAUGHTER VISITED BY MOTHER IN CELL

MRS. T. A. LIVINGSTON GOES TO AID OF DAUGHTER

CAIN IS LIGHT HEARTED

While Mother Weeps Over Wrongs of Her Daughter, Cain Idly Passes Time—Is Amused

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 9.—Mrs. T. A. Livingston of Wauwatosa, mother of Catherine Livingston, the girl who was arrested for begging on the streets in Chicago, went quickly to the aid of her daughter at the Harrison street station in that city. She wept bitter tears over her child in distress, and reviled Elmer E. Cain, assemblyman from Wauwatosa whom she accused of having wrecked the life of her daughter.

And while the gray-haired mother, who has lived a long life, honored and loved by those who know her, was demanding reparation for her daughter's wrongs through a speedy marriage with Cain, the Chicago police, moved to pity for the young girl, and to anger against Cain, were endeavoring to find a charge they could lodge against the former Milwaukee county politician. They finally decided on the convenient one of disorderly conduct.

Cain, sprightly and debonaire, displayed his talent for the stage, which has lured him of late, at the Harrison station by affecting the utmost nonchalance. Not only did he repudiate Miss Cain's love, but he continued to blame her "for getting him into this mess," saying that his political career in Wisconsin was marred by the affair.

Milwaukee politicians hold otherwise. According to their statements his services for his district have been a negative quantity. A year ago last August he was arrested on a statutory charge, on the complaint of a woman in Wauwatosa township. He was sued in justice court, but the suit was never finished, because death came to the rescue of the woman, and her nameless offspring followed the mother to the grave.

According to Mrs. Livingston her daughter had received a musical education and had been singing at private musicales and some in public. "She told me of an engagement she had to sing at a private house in Elgin and gave me the name and address. I let her go. That was the last I saw of her, for instead of going to Elgin, as was planned, she went to Chicago with this man Cain."

All of the girl's former devotion to Cain has seemingly turned to hate, and whether she will consent to a marriage with the ex-politician is doubtful.

Cain, it is said, after an argument with Mrs. Livingston, has consented to the marriage, although he takes the matter little to heart and continues to assert that he knew nothing of the girl's begging.

"Harry her!" he said. "Well, I think not. Begging? Well, I didn't know anything about it."

SECOND REGIMENT OFFICERS PROMOTED

BEAVER DAM, Wis., Nov. 9.—Cwing to the retirement of Col. Morgan of Appleton as commander of the Second regiment, W. N. G., who had reached the age limit, and the promotion of Lieut. Col. Zink will be assigned to the Third battalion (now the First) comprising Co. A of Marshfield, Co. I of Marinette, Co. L of Rhinelander and Co. M of Oconto.

FISH SMELLED BY GAME WARDEN

JANESVILLE, Wis., Nov. 9.—Two boxes labeled "poultry" and shipped from Fort Atkinson by a mythical personage signing himself "Ch. Smilt" to 1 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, were confiscated on an express car between the Port and Janesville by Deputy Game Warden Peter Dral. The boxes were packed with fish and contained 120 pounds of croppies, a fine white bass, and a large pike. Four dollars and twenty-five cents for the state was realized in the sale of the confiscated game.

BODY PARTIALLY EATEN BY RATS

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Nov. 9.—Charles Biyo, an aged French resident of town, was found dead in his bed by Peter Caretto. He had not undressed, and part of his right foot had been eaten away by rats, while his body was discolored. The "old man" was last seen alive a week ago. Biyo was a pioneer resident of this town, and was well known.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

APPLETON—John Reuter, a town of Black Creek farmer, is charged with selling adulterated milk to a cheese factory. Action has been brought against him by J. D. Cannon, assistant state food commissioner.

ASHLAND—It is reported that the Wisconsin Central contemplates sending its Abbotsoford passenger as far north as Ashland before the beginning of the new year.

FOND DU LAC—Because under its charter the Eastern Wisconsin Railway and Light company need not contribute toward street improvements, a movement is being aroused to have its charter tested as to its validity. It is claimed that Fond du Lac is the only city not receiving money from street car companies for such improvements.

GRAND RAPIDS—The Green Bay and Western railway company is making preparations for a new freight depot. The old freight house has already been moved and a crew of men is now engaged in preparing the foundation for the new building.

JANESVILLE—After being out nearly twelve hours, the jury which has been hearing the evidence in the case against James Cale, reported that it could not agree and was discharged. Cale was arrested for alleged participation in a highway robbery last month.

KAUKAUNA—James Jones, foreman of the government crew that is installing the sluice gates at the Menasha dam, had his left hand badly smashed in the cog wheels of a machine. Last winter while at work he was struck on the head by a heavy plank which fell from the top of the lock wall. A year ago at Appleton he had his left arm broken in four places.

KENOSHA—Bishop Samuel Fallows of Chicago will deliver an address at the celebration of the birth of Lincoln under the auspices of the Fred S. Lovell post, G. A. R.

MANITOWOC—Threats which he made against the owner, Oliver Ryan, and testimony showing that on the night previous to the fire he had followed Ryan two miles with the avowed purpose of "knifing" him, was the evidence upon which Theodore Reis, a Cato man, was bound over for trial in circuit court on the charge of arson. Reis is charged with setting the fire which destroyed a threshing outfit owned by Ryan.

THREE STABBED AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 9.—Three men, including the host, were stabbed in a fierce fight at a birthday party given by William Hanke, 429 West street.

As a result Hanke lies in Trinity hospital in a serious condition, suffering from a wound two inches deep and six inches long in the abdomen. Fred Redieck, 1321 Chicago street, received a gash in the right arm about eight inches long and August Strutz, Oklahoma and Austin avenues, received a cut extending from the right temple down the cheek and below the ear.

William Marine, 19 years old, 688 Scholler street, is under arrest in the Bay View police station, charged with stabbing the three. He is said by the police to have admitted his guilt yesterday.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Amalgamated Copper was very weak during the first half hour, declining 11-4 points. At the end of the half hour the market was heavy at losses ranging from 1 to 11-2 points.

Enormous trading occurred in the Reading and Steel Common during the afternoon. There was heavy buying of U. P. and Amalgamated Copper. An upward movement in progress at noon forced further advances.

TWO TRAPPED BY "FIRST ICE"

EVELETH, Minn., Nov. 9.—William Rosila, a 10-year-old boy, fell through the ice while playing on the Fayal mill pond. John Benson, a workman, tried to save him, but both were drowned. Joe Muhlick, 16 years old, who with Benson attempted to rescue the lad, had a very narrow escape.

It was the old story of venturing on the ice too early. Owing to the low temperature of the past few weeks a thin sheet of ice has formed on all small bodies of water. On the Fayal pond it was quite extensive and tempted the boy. He was walking and sliding when the ice gave way and he fell through.

A LIBERAL OFFER

The B. M. Hyde Drug Co., Guarantees to Cure Dyspepsia. If They Fail The Medicine Costs Nothing. To unquestionably prove to the people of La Crosse that indigestion and dyspepsia is curable and that Rexall dyspepsia Tablets will effect the cure, we will furnish the medicine absolutely free if it fails to give complete satisfaction to anyone giving it a trial.

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is largely due to the new and successful method of manufacture, whereby the well-known properties of Bismuth, Subnitrate and Pepsin have been combined with carminatives and their agents. Bismuth Subnitrate and Pepsin are recognized by the entire medical profession as specifics for acute indigestion and dyspepsia.

The Pepsin used in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is manufactured by a new process which develops its greatest efficiency. Pepsin supplies to the digestive apparatus one of the most important elements of the digestive fluid, and exerts a tonic influence upon all the glands which supply all the other elements necessary to proper assimilation and digestion.

The carminatives add properties which promptly relieve the disturbances and pain caused by undigested food.

The perfect combination of these ingredients make a remedy absolutely incomparable and invaluable for the complete cure of indigestion and dyspepsia.

We are so positively certain of this that we sell Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets on our own personal guarantee that they will either cure you or cost you nothing. Three sizes, 25c, 45c and 89c. O. T. Erhart, 431 Main street.
